BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

On the evening of Monday, May 3, at the home of Misses Artie and Alta Lovell of Central avenue, a delightful birthday surprise was given in honor of the twins, Misses Edith and Edna Alley.

The rooms were prettily decorated with red roses and ferns, with streamers of red and green crepe paper. A pleasing feature was the birthday cake decorated with (?) candles held in tiny red and green holders.

When all the excitement was thought to be over there came another surprise in the presentation of a camera with happy birthday greetings. Those present were Misses Edith and Edna Alley, Artie and Alta Lovell, Ruth Sanford and Lucile and Sadie Gilmore.

CONDITION OF COLUMBUS AVE.

There has been a great deal said, but nothing done, concerning the improvement of Columbus avenue. If there is a street in Glendale that needs paving and sidewalks put in, it is certainly this thoroughfare.

Seventy-five per cent or more of the children attending the West Glendale school have to travel on Columbus avenue and from the northern end to the southern end of this street there are only three or four half-block stretches of sidewalk. All the water from Brand boulevard west must of necessity pass along or across Columbus and there is not one cross drain to be found.

The city street superintendent has recently run a grader up and down the street to open up the ditches on the sides or in other words to build a dam so the water cannot cross, and the present condition looks similar to a large mortar box filled with mortar mixed ready for the plasterer.

If it is impossible to have this street graded now, surely there can be some temporary drains and crossings put in so that the children will not have to wade to school, the improvement would not only add to the comfort of the children, but would remove an eyesore to the city.

Someone has said the property owners on Columbus do not favor the improvement of the street. If they do not, it should be the duty of somebody to see that the conditions of the street are made better. Property owners on other streets are paying assessments for the improvement of the streets on which they reside and residents of Columbus avenue are getting the benefit of these improvements, and why not provide some means for the improvement of Columbus?

FROM OTHER SUBJECTS TURN AWAY WHILE WE CONSIDER
"MOTHERS' DAY"

Mother's Day is right upon us—that is—from the pulpits of our land ministers by special sermons will direct our attention to the duty of filial love and affection we owe to our mothers—a debt we never can fully pay by effort, well directed and constant. Alas, too often neglect takes the place of effort. This is a good time to reform.

Some good new things will work into next Sunday's services in the way of speech. How about the song and recitations? Who will recite that piece in our readers sixty years ago—"Who held me in her arms to rest and on my cheek sweet kisses pressed? My mother!"

And from what choir or soloist will you hear the touching tones of "Backward, turn backward, oh, time in your flight; make me a child again just for tonight. Mother, come back from that far-away shore; take me again to your arms as of yore. Over my slumber your loving watch keep; rock me to sleep, mother, rock me to sleep."

And what a strain of anguish rolls up with that song: "Oh, mother dear, I sigh in vain to live my childhood o'er again." And while we are breaking through the formalism and worldliness that too often drown our better selves, let us warm up towards our mothers and everybody else.

This is too good to omit:
Before It Is Too Late
If you have a gray-haired mother
In the old home far away,
Sit down and write the letter
You put off day by day.
Don't wait until her tired steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate,
But show her that you think of her
Before it is too late.

If you've a tender message
Or a loving word to say,
Don't wait till you forget it,
But whisper it today.
Who knows what bitter memories
May haunt you if you wait?
So make your loved ones happy
Before it is too late.

Oh, it is hard when boys and girls of tender years are forced by hard conditions in life to leave all too early the home, however so humble, and a mother's love—always strong in such cases. But to leave home under such conditions is infinitely preferable to abandoning in sheer love of adventure a good home and that most precious heritage, a mother's love.

In the moral forces that stand for good in the world, the voice of the loving mother in counsel and instruction to the children God has given her is more potent than all the laws and enactments of congress or legislators. The wandering son or the wayward daughter, while they often neglect, know they cannot drift beyond the love of mother. How the fact brings the wanderers home!

"Excuse me," said a visitor who entered a room where several young women were. "I was canvassing the block for children, and while none of you seemingly are mothers, you all have had mothers." "Hold," exclaimed one of the inmates, "mention not the holy name of mother here," and a flood of tears followed the speech. Back to home and mother resulted. Oh, mothers, work on, pray on; it often counts after you have crossed the divide.

"Be kind to thy mother, for when thou wert young, who loved thee as fondly as she? She caught the first accents that fell from thy tongue and joined in thy innocent glee. Be kind to thy mother, for thee will she pray as long as God giveth her breath. In accents of kindness then cheer her lone way, e'en to the dark valley of death."

The mother's far-reaching influence I saw once demonstrated thus: About twenty boys were having a high time at the "swimmin' hole" in a country pasture field. Upon the bank lay a fine athletic boy, viewing all the fun the others were having. "What's the matter, George; are you sick?" "No," he replied. "Then, why not go in?" "I promised my mother that I would not go in the water," was his manly reply. Mother was fifty miles away, but present right there in a noble son.

There is not in American history a name of any magnitude, from Washington to Wilson, among presidents; from Clay and Seward and Blaine and Bryan, who wanted to be; from Fessenden and Banks to Cannon and

VISIT VERDUGO PARK

PRETTY SYLVAN RETREAT NEAR GLENDALE IS OPEN FREE TO PICNICS

No more beautiful spot exists in Southern California, a section renowned the world over for its charm than Verdugo park, a sylvan spot in Verdugo canyon. This place has all the charms of the ideal picnic grounds and lacks the stiffness of the formal park. There are the giant oaks and sycamores that form an almost impenetrable canopy above, the natural, original wild beauty as if untouched by man, the crystal, clear mountain stream that finds its way through woodland paths and under rustic bridges, the green grass and every delight that nature has to offer those who love her and long to be near her. Added to the natural advantages of the place there are tables, benches, a dancing pavilion, baseball diamond and other conveniences added by man to make the place truly ideal as a retreat on a warm summer day.

Mr. W. A. Hall is the manager of the park and it is his desire that the people of Glendale become more familiar with this spot which is so near our doors. The park is open to everyone free of charge and is an ideal place for picnics of all kinds. Last summer a number of big organizations came out from the city to Verdugo park for their annual outing and it is expected that many of these will return again this coming summer. All Sunday schools and other organizations of Glendale that are accustomed to hold an annual picnic could find no better or prettier spot than this and all that is asked in return for the use of these beautiful grounds is that Manager Hall be notified in advance that they may make preparations for the entertainment of the crowd.

Glendale people should assist in making this place popular all over Southern California, and people of this vicinity who have never visited Verdugo park should do so and they will be enthusiastic in their praise of the place. Manager Hall will be found to be a most hospitable host to all picnic parties who desire to spend a day or a few hours in this sylvan retreat. His phone number is Glendale 625—two bells.

MISS WEAVER GIVES PROGRAM

Miss Clara Dell Weaver, well known dramatic reader and entertainer of Los Angeles, gave a fine program of readings and recitations at the Presbyterian church last night. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Young People's branch of the W. C. T. U., and despite the inclement weather, there was a good sized crowd present. In addition to the program and readings there was some excellent music by a trio consisting of Messrs. George Ketterling, piano; Mr. Carruthers, cello and Miss Frances Payne, violin. The members of the Y. P. B. feel grateful to all for the service so freely rendered.

There will be a meeting of the Y. P. B. next Tuesday evening, May 11, at the home of Mrs. George Lemon, 119 East Broadway. All members should be present and all other young people are cordially invited.

Champ Clark; from Neal Dow to Governor Johnson—but what attributes their success in large part to their mothers. Say, lads of '14, back up to your mother's apron strings.

From a home of ease and luxury he madly rushed away to the wild West and a herding ranch and life so free and gay; he stood it well until upon that childish, slender frame, with crushing weight the heavy hand of western fever came; his wasting form seemed burning up, his senses seemed to roam; aye, very bitter was the cup, his ravings all of home. "Oh, mother, hasten to my bed; your loving hand will cool my head."

If the girls and boys only knew the estimate intelligent people put on respectful treatment of mother in every-day life in the home, it would change their conduct at once. They do not mean to be rude or coarse, but how many are obedient, gentle, kind, considerate, tender to mother?

What picture is that before which a crowd is always gazing at any of the great expositions? Is it one of the world's famous artists? No; it seems commonplace. Then what holds the people? The boy is "leaving home." Others are there, but the boy and his mother are all you see. Out into the wide world he starts—well equipped morally—a mother's love and blessing.

MISS RICHARDSON HOSTESS AT FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS PULLIAM

Miss Myrtle Pulliam leaves shortly for an extended visit of nine months or a year with relatives and friends in Massachusetts and Connecticut, accompanying her cousin Miss Johnson, who has been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam the past few months.

As a compliment to Miss Pulliam, Miss Eula Richardson entertained with a dinner party at her beautiful home, Central avenue and Riverdale drive, Monday evening. Many beautiful roses were culled from Miss Richardson's rose garden, that is noted for its rare varieties, with which to adorn the rooms of the home of this gracious hostess, who was so charmingly assisted by her mother, Mrs. Ella W. Richardson. The color scheme was pink and white and this was skillfully executed in every detail of this social function in the beautiful arrangement of the pink Cecil Brunner roses which adorned the table, in the six courses that were served, in the dainty pink and white table service, and the hand painted pink rose place cards. Following the dinner Miss Pulliam enjoyed a farewell miscellaneous show, many pretty and useful remembrances so dear to a traveler, being presented. Music and games closed the delightful evening's entertainment in which Paul and John Richardson, brothers of the hostess, participated and added to the enjoyment.

Seated with Miss and Mrs. Richardson and Miss Pulliam were Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Legge, Miss Emily Elias, Miss Lorraine Mitchell, Miss May Church, Mr. Chevis Mitchell and Mr. John Smalley.

Again has the weather man interfered with the arrangements of Mrs. Ella W. Richardson, and her committee who have been working so faithfully for the great event that celebrates the completion of the municipal playgrounds. Owing to the continued inclemency of the weather, Dr. W. C. Mabry and his able assistants are greatly handicapped and their work seriously retarded, at least for Friday, hence the celebration has been postponed until Friday, May 14th. The work in which Dr. Mabry and his committee are engaged requires sunshine and dry grounds.

There is not a murmur heard from any one of the many who are actively engaged in the work, for all realize the vast amount of good these rains will accomplish.

Mrs. Richardson is well pleased with the work accomplished by her various committees. All plans are perfected and every arrangement made for the bonfire and cafeteria supper which will be held Friday evening, the 14th.

Mrs. E. B. Elias and Miss Eula Richardson contemplate departing for Palo Alto Sunday evening, where they will attend commencement exercises at Stanford university. Miss Lillian Elias will be graduated and the event is keenly anticipated by not only Mrs. Elias and Miss Richardson, but by a large circle of relatives and friends of Miss Elias, the latter of whom are legion. Miss Richardson will visit in San Francisco, Pacific Grove, Salinas and possibly Sacramento, before returning home.

LOST WATCH

A Glendale lady more than two weeks ago lost a watch with pin on one of the principal streets of Glendale. Undoubtedly some one found the watch and it seems incredible that no effort has been made to return the lost article to the owner. The watch was advertised by the lady who lost it and she offered a reward for its return, but she is unfortunate in not having heard from it.

MISS LENNOX GIVES PROGRAM

Miss Catherine Lennox formerly of Glendale and well known here, gave a recital in Symphony hall, Los Angeles, Monday evening, which was attended by a number of her young friends from this city. Miss Lennox graduates this year from the college of music of the University of Southern California.

APPRECIATE ENTERPRISE

In the past two months the Glendale Evening News has installed an additional linotype machine with new faces of linotype matrices and nearly $1000 worth of paper stock has been purchased. The citizens of the Glendale community appreciate the enterprise of the Evening News and make that appreciation known by giving The News liberal orders for job printing.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS

HIGH SCHOOL SPANISH AND GERMAN
CLASSES TO PRESENT
SENT PROGRAM

On Saturday, May 8, the Spanish and German classes of the high school will give a program in the high school auditorium under the direction of the instructors, Miss Field and Miss Darsie. The Spanish class will present "La Muela del Juicio" with the following cast:

Isidra Gwendolen Claflin
Rocio Florence Wheeler
Inocencia Margaret McPherson
Don Atilano Edward Seay
Un Caballero Howard Stickney
Raigon Wayne Smith
Pelaez Lyman Maxwell
El Garlopa Ernest Schuyler
Francisco George Terrill
Lelis George Dyer

The setting and story of the play are as follows:

The action takes place in the rooms of a dentist. Both the inner and outer offices are open to the audience. The action begins with Raigon (an old root) scolding his office boy for the disorderly condition of the bottles and instruments. Raigon announces that he is called away for an operation and will be gone all day. He leaves the office in charge of Francisco, telling him to say he is ill and not able to meet his appointments.

Before the dentist leaves he is interrupted by a call from Don Atilano, an old school friend, who is seeking assistance. Atilano has gained admittance only by persistently urging Francisco, whom he has known previously as a messenger of the government department. Raigon is very angry with Francisco for allowing the interruption and tells him to leave the next day. Atilano gains little from the interview, except to lose his patience and to become angry.

Francisco then suggests a plan to avenge himself and Atilano by pretending Atilano is the dentist, the money to be divided jointly.

The first patients to arrive are Lelis and Inocencia, two young lovers. Inocencia's father has allowed her to suffer for four days with a dreadful toothache. Lelis, her lover, has stolen some clothes and pawned them to get money to bring her to the dentist. While waiting in the outer office, Inocencia suddenly says that her toothache has stopped and that she wants to go home. They compromise by going to a cafe for a dinner and quiet talk.

Next comes Rocio (dewdrop), a widow, who has come to buy a tooth wash. Soon after enters a gentleman, Flores by name (flowers). He is suffering greatly and groans frequently. Rocio is a jolly, sociable woman and begins conversation with the gentleman. At first he pays little attention, but later is attracted by her and almost forgets his toothache. During the conversation he learns her name and that she is a widow. That the flowers need the dew is his sentiment. Her turn comes to go in to the dentist. While he is waiting, he decides that the pain has left him and that he will go down stairs and wait for this charming woman.

Garlopa (a jack plane), with Isidra, his wife, are the next arrivals. Atilano, who is not a real dentist, hesitates to do anything for the woman and tells her to return later. When he asks a fee of two dollars for examination, Garlopa is very angry and leaves the office refusing to pay. Atilano tells Francisco that they are not making the money they had hoped to from the numerous patients of Dr. Raigon and that the last scene has almost unnerved him.

Finally Pelaez (the new assistant secretary of the governmental department), under whom Atilano is very anxious to secure a position, enters. Naturally Atilano is greatly excited and fears Pelaez may recognize him. After a good deal of persuasion, Atilano consents to pull a tooth, as he has been prompted to action by the promise of a position and the receiving of a fee of ten dollars.

Before Pelaez leaves, Lelis and Inocencia return. Both recognize the voice of Atilano. He is the father of Inocencia and has been opposed to Lelis, but now, on the eve of his victory, willingly grants a pardon. Flores now returns, for his tooth is bothering him again. Atilano is too elated by his success of the day and will not even look at the poor man's tooth. Francisco seizes the opportunity and starts to work on the patient. Unexpectedly Raigon appears, while Rocio returns, also Garlopa and Isidra.

"Der Meisterschaft" will be given by the German class with the following cast:

MISS QUINCH TO WED

THE PRESBYTERIAN PHILATHEA
SHOWERS MEMBER WITH PRETTY GIFTS

On Tuesday evening the regular business meeting of the Philathea class of the Presbyterian church was held at the home of Miss Jennie Horsch, 130 Cedar street. Events of unusual importance transpired during the evening, when following the business meeting and just before the supper was served all were invited to participate in a game that consisted of pinning an arrow to a heart suspended in the middle of a sheet, while blindfolded. All were more or less proficient in puncturing the heart with the arrow until it came to Miss Marie Quinch. The girls thought she had already had enough experience in that line and removed the sheet. When the blindfold was removed Miss Quinch found before her a table stacked high with dainty gifts and she soon "came to" that she was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower in honor of her coming marriage to Mr. Will Fowler of Riverside.

Following the examination of the dainty and useful gifts, supper was served and then came another surprise when a number of the gentlemen friends of the young ladies made their appearance and helped them to spend the evening most pleasantly in games, music and social intercourse. Roses of many hues lent their beauty to this happy affair and nice refreshments were served later in the evening.

Those who enjoyed the evening were: Misses Marie Quinch, Jennie Horsch, Helen Tupper, Vera Grant, Mina Robertshaw, Pearl Adams, Elsie Wilson, Hazel Irwin, Laura Harkness, Fern Porter, Jean McNutt, Mae McIver, Mrs. Elizabeth Wild, Mrs. James Cooper, Messrs. James Cooper Hal McNutt, Joe Wilson, Clarence Klamm, Homer Bullard, Ted Robertshaw, James McBryde, Ray Morrow, Morris Chandler, Nelson Sprinkle, John Stauffacher and Paul Pierce.

MRS. BRYANT IMPROVED

The many friends of Mrs. A. L. Bryant, who has been very seriously ill for the past two weeks, will be very glad to know that she is slightly improved today. She is still very ill and is as yet unable to see her own people. She wishes to thank all her friends for the many flowers and loving words that have been sent her and when she is better and able to return home from the Sisters' hospital she will be glad to see all and thank them in person.

FIRST M. E. BARACA

On account of the electrical parade to be shown in Los Angeles on Thursday night, the regular monthly business meeting of the Baraca class has been postponed.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT

Five people were flung into eternity Tuesday in the twinkling of an eye when an automobile driven by Gwin Hicks of Olympia, Wash., collided with a Pacific Electric Santa Ana bound train at Lynnwood station near Watts. The touring car containing Hicks and his wife and two children, aged four years and eighteen months; Mrs. J. A. Atkinson of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Luther Brown of Pomona, failed to answer the brakes and skidded on the oiled road across the tracks. The trolley car was moving at thirty miles an hour. All occupants of the motor car were killed almost instantly except the driver, who is in the Crocker street hospital, where it is thought he will recover. At the time the accident happened the rain was falling in torrents, the automobile side curtains were down and the windshield covered with raindrops. The wheels were without chains.

Mr. Hicks is a resident of Olympia, Wash., and is a commissioner of the state of Washington to the San Diego exposition. Mrs. Brown, who is well known in Pomona, was a cousin of Mrs. Hicks.

DEDICATING TREES TO PERSONS

President Wilson has assisted in planting a tree dedicated to his baby grandson, Francis Sayre. There is something particularly pleasing and impressive in the planting of trees and dedicating them to some person, living or dead. It is a custom that should be encouraged. Especially may the young be given real sentimental and cultural uplift in this, and at the same time have interest in arboriculture and the preservation of forests stimulated, through planting trees and dedicating them to great and good personages.

Trees inspire us with a feeling of kinship. Sometimes they almost seem like rational, feeling beings. They seem to speak to us—they assuredly do impress us with certain well-defined qualities. In dedicating trees to persons, we find in the lords of the forest some of the qualities that we admire in the person to whom the tree is dedicated. Let us dedicate more trees. Encourage the children to do it.

VOTING QUALIFICATION

In the Argentine Republic they do many things excellently—for example electing their officials—according to J. C. Roulette, commissioner from Maryland to the Panama-Pacific exposition, who is now in Los Angeles.

For the last four years Mr. Roulette has been constantly traveling. He has investigated twenty-five countries. Some he likes. Some he dislikes. A few he abominates. But the Argentine Republic he thinks is first rate.

"In the South American republic no man is allowed to vote unless he has at least $300 in the bank," said Mr. Roulette in sketching the charms of the southern land. "He carries his bank book to the polls. Each book contains his photograph. He shows it and votes."

"But woe betide him if he is entitled to vote and fails to do so! In that case he is fined $100. And I may add, the polls are generally crowded on election day."

WHY DID THEY DO IT?

Berkeley girls went to school in what they termed "hot socks," each a different color from its mate. The girl who had a blue pair exchanged one with the girl who had purchased red, and yellow swapped with green. Yet there are accusations that the modern school does not teach pupils to think.

Elihu Root's only chance of retiring from public life is to retire from life altogether.

THERE is a natural instinct in every living creature to save something for a time of need. The primitive man provided only for his daily wants, but Civilization, by means of a Bank Account, has enabled you to provide for years to come.

Don't be a Savage—show your regard for the future, keep step in the march of progress and open an account today.

Said bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California entitled "An Act to provide a system of street improvement bonds to represent certain assessments for the cost of street work and improvements within municipalities, and also for the payment of such bonds," approved February 27, 1893, and of all acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof.

MOTHERS' DAY AT FIRST ENG. EVAN. LUTHERAN CHURCH

This congregation worships in the I. O. O. F. hall, corner of Third and Isabel streets. Sunday school is held at 10 o'clock and divine worship at 11 o'clock each Sunday morning. The interest of the Lutheran people of Glendale and vicinity, and all others who favor their efforts to establish the great church of the reformation in this city, is most cordially solicited. Everyone whose heart the Lord God touches with a desire to worship him, not affiliated with any other church in the city, will be made welcome, and we need you.

This coming Sunday is known as Mothers' Day and in line with it the pastor, Rev. R. W. Mottern, will speak on the importance of it, emphasizing the glory and honor of motherhood. You had a mother. Come and let us reflect upon what she has borne for you and what as a loyal son or daughter you owe her memory. It will do you good. The pastor will sing "A Mother Dear Is Pleading."

METHODIST LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Methodist church met in the church parlors Tuesday and despite the rain had one of the most enjoyable meetings of the year. This was the close of a membership contest which resulted in a tie. To celebrate and to welcome the new members, a banquet was served at noon to which more than sixty sat down to the beautifully decorated tables. After doing justice to the many good things served, the following program was given: Piano solo, Mrs. Fuller; reading, Mrs. Weaver; piano solo, Mrs. Beveridge; reading, Miss Margaret Lusby.

Irvin Cobb's assertion that he could write 10,000 words about a peanut probably is true. He has seemed almost this heartless in writing of other things.

BOOSTING LIFE INSURANCE

A New York woman, eager for alimony, has gone into court to attempt to compel her husband to insure his life in her favor. While this is boosting life insurance with a vengeance and hardly is to be commended for emulation, yet it is properly thoughtful of married men, if able to do so, to keep themselves insured for the benefit of the loved ones dependent upon them.

Mr. Stephenson, an American gentleman, has left his two daughters, Annie and Margaret, in a small German village in order that they may learn the language. They are strictly forbidden to have any callers unless they speak to them in German only.
Mr. Stephenson hopes also in this way to discourage two young Americans who have been devoting themselves to the two girls. No sooner has the father departed than the two young men appear in the village. To their dismay they learn that they may only call on their sweethearts if they speak in German, a language of which they are quite ignorant.
They buy Meisterschaft's little handbooks of German questions and answers and start in to prepare for a call upon the girls. Meanwhile, the girls are despairingly trying to memorize enough German expressions to be able to entertain the young men when they arrive. The difficulties of the call may be imagined and further complications follow when the fact is revealed that each youth, without telling the other, has pretended to have composed Heine's
"Du Bist Wie Eine Blume" to his sweetheart. All misunderstandings are finally cleared up and Mr. Stephenson gives his blessing to both weddings as the curtain falls.

This program is at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium. An admission of ten cents will be charged.
Following the Spanish play there will be initiation of new members and election of officers of La Tertulia.

MODERN MEDIATION

A clever man once defined a blotter as "something with which you occupy your mind looking for while the ink dries itself." In the same way we might perhaps define mediation as something with which to fill the newspapers and keep meddlers out of mischief while the combatants settle their affairs for themselves.

HOMESTEAD ACT

Officials of the local land office are in receipt of an important ruling on the subjects of the provisions of the enlarged homestead act and additional entry after proof, and also in regard to petitions for designation under that act.

The act of congress provides an additional entry after proof on the original, provided the applicant still owns and occupies the tract first entered, and defines the residence and cultivation required in connection therewith. It does not change the law as to additional entries made before submission of proofs on the original, but confers the right of entry only on one who still owns and occupies the land first entered, although it is not required that the claimant be residing on the tract, and the occupancy may be by an agent or through a tenant. There is no change in the law that requires the tracts must be contiguous, and this would not be fulfilled by the fact that they corner on each other.

If the proof on the original entry has been accepted as sufficient under either the five or the three-year act, no further residence is needed, but if the proof was by way of commutation, claimant must show such further residence before or after the date of the original entry, as will make up the aggregate amount required to show cultivation of the additional tract itself, to the extent and for the period required by the act of June 6, 1912, that is one-sixteenth of its area during the second year of the entry, and one-eighth during the third and until submission of proof, which must occur within five years after the date of the original entry.

The instructions in regard to petitions for designation apply where a person is seeking to make an additional entry, regardless of the question whether proof has or has not been already submitted on his original filing. It does not affect the right of any person interested in designation of land to forward to the director of the United States geological survey or to the secretary of the interior a petition therefor.

Where a preference right is sought there must be filed in the local land office the usual application for entry, original or additional, executed by the applicant and two witnesses, and accompanied by the applicant's affidavit setting forth the character of the land involved. Under the law the additional homestead of a quarter section must be land that has no known supply of water, but if any parts are irrigated, their area, location, source of water supply, etc., should be stated. If any part or parts are under constructed or proposed irrigation ditches or canals, or adjacent thereto, the reasons for the belief of the applicant that the lands are not irrigable therefrom should be explained.

When the application for the additional land is made to the local land office, the entry is suspended and the affidavit is forwarded to the geological survey in Washington for consideration, to see whether the land is not amenable to irrigation and whether there is no known supply of water to be had. While this investigation is being made, the party's homestead rights will be held in abeyance; he will not be allowed to exercise that right elsewhere, nor will he be permitted to have two applications under the act pending at the same time. If a request for designation is denied, the application will be rejected. Where a petition is granted in part an order will be made with reference to the designated land. If all of the land is designated, the appropriate entry will be allowed.

The benefits of the law do not extend to a person who has filed a petition for designation elsewhere than at the local land office of the district where the land is located. In every case where there is now pending an application for original or additional entry under the enlarged homestead act, not allowable because part of the land has not been designated, the applicant must be given thirty days within which to furnish the required corroborated affidavit in duplicate. Where a person has filed a petition for designation of land, but no application for entry thereof, he will be obliged to comply with the provisions promulgated in order to obtain the preference right desired.

BROWN SAUCE FOR CABBAGE

Cabbage can be made very palatable by serving with a brown sauce. Boil the cabbage in salt water until very tender, then cover with a sauce made as follows: Put one heaping tablespoonful of browned flour into a tablespoonful of melted butter; add a pinch of salt, a dash of red pepper and one cupful of cold water; stir until smooth and thick, then pour over the cabbage, which should be well drained.

For a delicious coleslaw take half as much chopped celery as cabbage and pour over it a dressing consisting of one egg beaten thoroughly. Add a pinch of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-quarter of a cupful of vinegar and one-half cupful of water. Let come to a boil and then thicken with a heaping teaspoonful of flour and one of cornstarch mixed together and thinned with water. Make the dressing about as thick as thin cornstarch and let it get cold. When thoroughly cold add a gill of cream whipped to a froth.

GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT

Los Angeles county's road commission is achieving a wonderful engineering feat in the building of the Topanga Canyon road, which will be open for travel by the 15th of May, according to the latest estimates made by Engineer Joiner.

The new Topanga Canyon road is 14.3 miles long, entering the canyon a few miles north of Santa Monica and traversing the Santa Monica mountains via Topanga and Garra-pata creeks, joining the state highway at Calabasas.

The road will have a minimum width of thirty feet when completed and in many places is much wider than this. The grades are no longer as difficult as they were on the old road, the maximum having been reduced from more than 25 per cent. to 10 per cent. There is only 1000 feet of 10 per cent. grade and 1600 feet of 8.75 per cent. grade. The rest of the road in some places touches a grade of 7 per cent., but in most places is less than that.

In building this stretch of county highway the engineers have been called upon to meet many unusual conditions, and they have met them in unusual and efficient ways. The appropriation for the road has not been stinted, for the Highway Commission realized the importance of doing the thing right at the start, and has provided a road, the maintenance of which will be very light.

Up to the 21st of April the grading of the road, exclusive of culverts, has cost a little more than $9000 a mile, and the commission estimates that the additional work will bring this total close to $12,000 a mile. In addition there are five bridges across Topanga and Garra-pata creek and the little canyons which converge with them.

The largest item in bridging the stream was the erection of two Howe truss bridges across Topanga creek. These have a length of seventy-seven feet between the concrete abutments and a road width of twenty feet. They cost $7000 and $7500, the second one requiring larger abutments.

The wooden post trestle across Garra-pata creek, which is one of the two-span type, twenty-nine feet long, with twenty-four feet roadway, cost $300, while the two small bridges over draws, one twenty-two feet long and the other twenty-five feet long, with twenty-four feet roadway, cost $200 and $350. These bridges, with the culverts, will bring the total cost of the Topanga Canyon road to more than $13,000 a mile.

NEWSPAPER ILLUSTRATIONS

There has been a wonderful change in newspaper illustrations during the past thirty years. Papers of the 80's look odd, with their little wood cuts. Photography has wrought a marvelous change. It has also led to extremes says Brain and Brown.

Thirty-five years ago, when I was editing the Wasp, in San Francisco, an old gentleman, who had a dusty studio on upper Kearny street, introduced us to a reproduction of pictures made by means of a screen. I published a number in the Wasp at that time, and looking over an old volume, I find that they are not at all bad. This, I believe, was the beginning of photo-engraving in America.

Newspaper illustrations have been overdone. They should be used to illustrate the text, whereas now they too often clutter up the pages with meaningless pictures of things that are not worth while. Of late some papers have adopted the custom of filling their pages with pictures of girls—grinning girls, looking like dentists' advertisements, in some cases the teeth being touched up with white, making the resemblance more striking. There are girls admiring a big watermelon, or lifting their skirts while crossing a gutter, or doing things apropos of nothing, so as to bring themselves into the limelight. The reading public is becoming quite weary of this avalanche of girls.

The Christian Science Monitor, the best newspaper in the world, both in appearance and contents, is distinguished also for its unique and artistic illustrations. They are etchings, and really works of art. Also, they always illustrate something worth while, and the text is not made subservient to the pictures. The Kansas City Star also etches its pictures, but not so artistically as the Monitor.

There is much room for improvement in newspaper illustrations.

CLEARLY STATED

"Customers will please take notice that if they wish to smoke in here they will please either extinguish their pipes or else go outdoors."

A life of ease and luxury does not bring out the best in a man or woman any more than a smooth sea makes a skillful mariner. One must try conclusions with hard work and adversity to develop latent strength of character.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

The man without a sense of humor is mentally tone-deaf and color blind. He goes through life unconscious of many of its delights. A British writer once said, when various forms of literary work were being discussed, "I joke with difficulty," quite unaware that he was being funny without having any difficulty whatever.

But he was not so constituted that he could have the fun of laughing at himself. More recently a London editor has been remarking that American papers seldom amuse him. Very probably. An American paper capable of amusing a London editor would have small function to perform in this country, aside from serving to wrap the Chinese laundry's output. London has no humorous publication that seems to us to compare with Life, and yet it has a number that pass muster over there. It has nothing to equal Puck and Judge, if considered in relation to brightness and artistry. Nevertheless, the Englishman is entitled to his palpable and often diagrammed humor, because he likes it. An American often may laugh at it, too, but not in a similar spirit. A professional joke vendor, it is told, was grinding out his daily quips, a friend who had entered looking over them as the author tossed them off. Suddenly the friend burst into a loud shriek of mirth, whereupon the author looked about, annoyed, and snarled at him, "Well, what's the matter with it? Isn't it a good one?" Now, the laugh of that friend, had it been based on the conception that the author suspected and was ready to resent, would have been exactly of the type with which the American is apt to greet the real British joke. He regards it as funny because he thinks it isn't funny. So there is no justice in repining that American papers fail to amuse the London editor. Honors, as between the two people, are easy.

HOUDON, THE SCULPTOR

Since the days of the cathedral builders France has never been without great masters of the chisel. Traditions and an ever accumulating skill have been passed on as from father to son through generations immemorial. With all that "apostolic succession" of genius we of another race are strangely unfamiliar. One name, however, we associate with that of our first president, and for this reason, and not because Jean Antoine Houdon was the leading sculptor of his time, is he sometimes mentioned in the United States.

As the "first sculptor of his day" Houdon was invited in 1784 by Thomas Jefferson, representing the state of Virginia, to make a statue of General Washington. On July 28, 1785, the sculptor with three assistants sailed in the company of Benjamin Franklin from Southampton, bound for Philadelphia. The journey required nearly two months and Houdon did not arrive at Mount Vernon until October 2.

Two weeks were occupied in modeling the bust, making a life mask, and taking many measurements, with all of which the artist departed rejoicing, and, thanks to the rapid ocean service of the time, was home again on Christmas day.

The result of this trip was the notable marble which stands in the state house at Richmond, our most trustworthy portrait of the first president.—Scribner's.

A RARE DECORATION

The grand cross of the order of Maria Theresa is today one of the most exclusive as well as one of the most brilliant of surviving orders. It was founded by the great empress of that name in 1757 in honor of the victory of her troops over Frederick the Great at Kolin. Its members are elected by ballot on the part of the chapter, the sovereign having no voice in the matter unless he happens to possess the order, although he is the instrument of its bestowal and the signer of the patent.

In the past hundred years, until August, 1914, only fifty-eight members had been thus admitted to the order, and at the beginning of the war in 1914 there were but three knights left, all of the third and lowest class. One was the Emperor Francis Joseph, who won the cross in 1848 on the battlefield of Santa Lucia against the Italians. The second was the Duke of Cumberland, father of the sovereign Duke of Brunswick, who received the cross for gallantry at the battle of Langensalza, where as crown prince of Hanover he helped his father, the blind King George, to direct the operations of his troops. The third was Prince Alphonse de Bourbon, claimant to the throne of the two Sicilies and popularly known as the Count of Caserta. He won his cross by the part he played in the superb defense of Gaeta, the last stronghold of the Bourbons.

BOOSTING THE TOWN IS NEWS-PAPER'S BUSINESS

In various parts of the country newspapers are engaged in boosting their home towns—that is, they are making special efforts to set before the world the advantages of living in or dealing with their towns.

Broadly speaking, a good newspaper is always engaged in this activity.

In the work of town boosting it is safe to say that the newspapers of the West and Middle West have led the way. They have made it their business. Town boosting to some of these papers is as natural as it is for their editors and owners to eat their daily bread. They have had big results. Villages have grown into towns, towns have grown into cities in a very short space of time under this beneficial town boosting treatment.

It lies within the power of every publisher to do something for his community in this direction. It will benefit the people, it will benefit business generally.—South Pasadena Record.

TRADING STAMP LAW

The trading stamp business will be materially affected in Pennsylvania if a bill passed by the house of representatives becomes a law. It is known as the Walton bill, having been presented by Representative Walton of Lawrence county. The vote was 146 to 17. The bill calls for a tax of $1000 a year upon every trading stamp company and a tax of $150 a year upon all retail merchants using such stamps. A firm or corporation wishing to run an independent trading stamp business would be taxed $1000 for each place of business operated. This would cover retail grocery and cigar store enterprises which have such a scheme in operation at this time. One-fourth of the revenue would go to the state and the remainder to the counties for road and bridge purposes. Mr. Walton said the bill had the backing of the Retail Merchants' association of Pennsylvania, with a membership of 10,000.

SAUSAGES AND ART

Robert Henri, the painter, was talking about those millionaires who buy, merely to show off, doubtful "old masters" at fabulous prices.

"Their knowledge of art," Mr. Henri said, "is about equal to that of the sausage manufacturer who said to Whistler:

"What would you charge to do me in oil?"

"Ten thousand dollars," Whistler said promptly.

"But suppose I furnish the oil?" said the millionaire.—Dallas News.

BROOKLETS FROM "BRAIN AND BRAWN"

A man dislikes to be forced to think, even as a sleeper dislikes to be aroused from heavy slumber.

Absurd is a word usually applied to anything of which you disapprove. The United States should establish a bureau of marital efficiency.

Technical education is good, but we should aim to make young men something more than machines.

Pedestrians are annoying to automobilists. They should go under or over.

Notoriety may be achieved in a day. Fame must patiently be earned. Age, below twenty-five, is masculine and feminine. Above that it is masculine only.

Anarchy may be described as the condition the nation is coming to if the other party gets in.

Ancestors are antiquated old fellows who are always blushing at our crimes.

"Authentic" is a word attached by newspaper writers to information picked up on the street.

All men are Progressives, unless they are fossils. They may, however, spell it with a small "p."

Adversity is the school in which character is formed.

Affluence is ten cents a day more than your expenditure.

Affronting a man often means telling him the truth.

After making up your mind on the subject, sleep over it.

Hating people does not hurt them, but it does hurt you.

When a prizefighter begins to see defeat, he gets ugly and may hit below the belt. So it is in war.

DECAY OF HUMAN SOCIETY

We esteem human life too lightly.

There is no person so humble, or so obscure, that his or her life means nothing to anybody. There is a sacredness and a dignity about human life that should be respected more than it is. Let it become customary to over-value the lives of the favored few and to despise the lives of the many, and human society will begin to decay at its very heart.

So tremendous are the influencing possibilities of the moving picture, those who write scenarios, those who produce the pictures and those who permit them to be shown should have upon them, at all times, a weighty sense of responsibility as to the kind of influence they are exerting.

SPELLING

Some of the universities are changing the requirements of entrance. The nature of these changes is not stated, but hope arises that the student will have to prove ability to spell with tolerable precision. Of course there are few who are capable of spelling all the words they use in conversation, but it should be considered not only disgraceful not to be able to spell well enough for all common purposes, but such ignorance ought to bar the door of every university against the applicant. It is true that this would be a little severe, but it might impel the schools below the university to attend to a duty that for a number of years has been neglected shamefully. They now graduate pupils who, far from knowing how to spell, have but a meager and incidental knowledge of the alphabet and the relationship that exists among its characters. The trick of teaching a child to read without first having learned its letters deserves to be ranked as a pedagogic crime. The child is left by this process handicapped most sorely, and has to learn for itself by hard knocks the fundamentals that a proper method would have used as the educational foundation.

THE SOUND OF BULLETS

That bullets neither whine, hiss, howl, hum nor whisper, novelists to the contrary notwithstanding, is information given by Edward C. Crossman. With one possible exception—when in certain conditions of open country military bullets hiss to those standing back of the firing line—nothing is audible except a sharp crash of air closing around the bullet's base when it travels at high speed. At a velocity of 1500 feet a second, or more, the noise is "like nothing so much as a long and very violently cracked blacksnake whip." Those who stand far enough from the rifle hear the bullet's crack and later the dull, thudding noise of the rifle itself, which has been outsped. Jack London makes a soldier hit at 600-yard range first hear the sound of the modern rifle and then feel the blow of the bullet. But the bullet would have killed him half a second before the sound from the rifle reached him.—Outing.

When United States weather observers speak of snow flurries in California mountains and heavy rains and light frosts in May as "unique," this should be pretty convincing evidence that uncommon weather is not common in this state.
